Fun, games and safety

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

It was all fun, games and safety at Canadian Salt's Lindbergh Works last Tuesday, as management and staff took part in the annual Safety Day.

With a record of 1.4 million hours without a lost-time accident, plant manager Roman Pietrus said, "We have something to celebrate."

Fueled by a noontime barbecue topped off with huge slices of carrot cake, four teams of workers set out to complete four events, with teams earning points for following correct safety procedures and having the correct answers to questions they encountered in the course of the Safety Day challenge.

This year, two exciting new events were part of the challenge. All participants agreed the Distracted Driving video game was a hit, as two at a time took turns channeling their inner Mario and Luigi as they raced motorbikes around a hazard-filled track, made more hazardous by offers of snacks and beverages, requests to read a limerick and to call the office while adding up the digits in the phone number, all in the safe environment of the plant's board room. Cindy Lawrence topped the individual scores in this one, as she steered to the side of the road and came to a full stop while she called and added.

Another entertaining event was the Safety Jeopardy, with Susan MacKinnon serving as game show host "Alexa" and pulling up answers worth various amounts in categories ranging from WHMIS to Emergency Response to Cardinal Rules of Safety. It took teamwork and a few quick peeks at the workers' handbooks to pair the appropriate questions with a few of the answers, but most responses were quick and easy for the workers.

Two events required more physical effort, as well as background knowledge. The Forklift Rodeo was a repeat from last year, with each team giving the forklift a preliminary safety check before choosing an operator who climbed aboard, carefully lifted a pallet loaded with a container of water and transported it through a slalom course of pylons, in both forward and reverse, with the least possible spillage.

Steady as he goes

Advice was plentiful as teammates cheer on forklift operator Larry Romaniuk as he eases through a slalom course of pylons with a container of water carefully balanced on a pallet, with the aim being not to spill a drop as he made his way through in both forward and reverse at Canadian Salt's Safety Day Forklift Rodeo.

Heinsburg Trail Day aids cancer victims

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

More than 50 riders, wagon teamsters, ATV enthusiasts and runners took part in Heinsburg's Second Annual Cancer Fundraiser Trail Day on Saturday, in what was described as "an awesome ride" and "A perfect, perfect day" by participants.

The ride was a short one, starting in late morning for the journey down the Iron Horse Trail to Middle Creek, where the cavalcade stopped for a wiener roast before making the return trip, and moseying back into Heinsburg about 4 p.m. for supper and music around the campfire.

All donations made by the participants and proceeds from the day will go to Haying in the '30s to assist cancer victims in northeast Alberta.

Roy Scott chats with a fellow teamster at the end of the pleasant afternoon ride while his wife and fellow Trail Day organizer Marjorie unloads the leftover supplies from the mid-trail lunch.

Precision maneuvering is required by forklift operator Larry Romaniuk as he inches the soccer ball on the forks toward the bucket-turned-basket in the Forklift Rodeo competition.

Fun, games and safety at Lindbergh

Next, the operator was required to lift a marked wooden beam suspended between two stacks of pallets to a new location between two different pallets, and set it in place with the markings between the pallets. After re-piling stacks of pallets with the machine, the operators faced the final test of moving the forks closer together to lift a basketball off a pylon with the forks and gently lifting it aloft, then tipping it into a basket made from a bottomless five-gallon pail.

The final event required a good memory of safety procedures, as teams were faced with a chemical spill they must contain. An open barrel left on a pallet, so the preliminary story line went, had tipped over when the pallet broke, spilling the contents. Teams raced to fetch spill kits including a 'sock' barrier and rubber gloves and proceeded to contain the flow, while remembering to stay upwind of the spill, identify the contents and inform their supervisors so necessary authorities could be alerted.

With all events completed, the groups gathered at their starting point to go over the afternoon's events, each one of them offering a lesson to be learned," Pietrus said. The Jeopardy portion proved that "you know the resources you can go to, and that you can rely on each other. As a team, you can be stronger." The Distracted Driving event "provided a lesson that hit home," he added, while the skills used in the Forklift Rodeo and Spill Containment are "critical" in that workplace.

"Let's make sure we go back to the basics of safety," he continued. "We get complacent, but we must each make sure our work area is safe."

Pietrus expressed thanks to Bob Alberico, Jim Vincent and Michael Resetar of Morton International Inc.'s Chicago office for being on hand for the event.

This year's winning team was made up of Meaghan Nawrot, Holly Myshaniuk, Cory Zacharuk, Charles Martenson and Darrel Malo. Myshaniuk and Malo were also part of last year's top team.

The afternoon was also a fundraiser for STARS Air Rescue, with close to $600 raised through ticket sales, an amount that will be matched by both the company and the union for a $1,800 donation to that worthy cause. Draw winners were Shauna Campbell, winning an iPad, Larry Romaniuk winning football tickets and Cindy Lawrence winning the day off with pay.

Senior Games start today

By RYAN MCCrackEN
Review Contributor

The Lakeland Senior Games Association (LSGA) will hold the 55-Plus Senior Games on Aug. 14 - 16 in Lac La Biche.

A number of Elk Point seniors will be taking part, competing in events such as bocce, cribbage, golf and visual arts and crafts.

"It's a good opportunity to take part in an activity and to socialize with people," said LSGA member Paul-Emile Boisvert, who has been participating at the games since 1993.

LSGA members from across northern Alberta will gather in Lac La Biche to take part in a number of events including military whist, cribbage, bocce, golf, floor curling, carpet bowling, 5-pin bowling, shuffleboard, horseshoes and snooker.

The three-day event will open with a meet and greet dinner on the evening of August 14, and competitions will commence the following morning.

"The challenge of going into an event is always there," Boisvert said. "Regardless of how old you are, you don't really lose that competitive edge when you get involved into an activity."

The LSGA holds events for seniors on a monthly basis. For more information visit www.lakelandseniorgames.com.

Storm-tossed boaters found in Frog Lake woodland

By JANANI WHITFIELD
Review Contributor

Eight people, including a child as young as three, were rescued in the early morning of Aug. 9, after a storm hit their boat and left them lost and wandering through Frog Lake First Nation bush at night.

The party of three adults and five youths, ranging in age from three to 14, had left to go boating on Frog Lake the previous day, according to Cpl. Roy Auger, acting commander for the Elk Point detachment. "They went out in the afternoon with the warm weather," he said, noting they were dressed for warmth as well, with one wearing a bathing suit and one of the kids wearing a small dress. "The storm obviously caught them off guard."

Their boat sustained some damage, but the group made it to the shore, and then attempted to make it to Highway 897, he said. "When traveling through the bush, they obviously got lost... and got disoriented, and ended up going in circles."

One of the adults had a phone, and did call 911, reporting that they were lost, but his phone later died and RCMP didn't have any further information at the time. At about 12:30 a.m., family members started to get worried, since the boaters had been expected back at 11 p.m., and put in a call for service. Some local volunteers, along with Elk Point RCMP, started a search, and at 6 a.m., the Canadian Forces Search and Rescue from Cold Lake responded to the incident with a helicopter, according to Auger.

Half an hour later, that search crew located the lost band, suffering from minor exposure to the elements, and transported them to waiting RCMP, said Auger.

In a press release, RCMP reminded boaters to notify their friends or family of their travel plans and any changes to those plans, with the release noting the "prompt response" of family members helped to locate all the missing individuals quickly and without any major injuries.

Auger added, "You should check the forecast, definitely, if you're going to be out on the water for extended periods."

World-class curler to golf in Oilmen's

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

There are a lot of familiar names in the players' lineup for the 29th annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament. Some are local residents, some lived and worked here in the past, and some have been coming here for the tournament year after year.

One name, however, is familiar because we've heard in over and over in the sports news on television for more than a decade.

Curler Carter Rycroft, who played second for Kevin Koe to win gold in the Brier in Halifax in 2010 and silver in Saskatoon in 2011, as well as gold at the World Curling Championship in 2010 and silver at the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, where he curled with Kevin Martin, will trade his broom for his golf clubs this weekend and tee off Friday morning with Kurt Kozicky, Curtis Porcina, Norm Quinney III, Jordan Cousins, Chad Colbourne, Joe MacKinnon and Mike Tilley in the First Flight of the Oilmen's.

Curling fans may catch a glimpse of Rycroft early Friday afternoon at the Elk Point Golf and Country Club after he completes his first round of the tournament.

Government offers support for parents of critically ill children

OTTAWA - The Government of Canada announced on August 7, a proposed new Employment Insurance (EI) special benefit for parents who take time off work to care for their critically ill or injured children.

"Our Government is committed to supporting parents and families," said MP Brian Storseth. "This new EI special benefit will ease the financial pressure on parents who take time off work to care for their critically ill or injured children when they need it the most."

Parents who must take time off work to care for a child who has a life-threatening illness or injury would be able to apply for up to 35 weeks of this new EI special benefit.

Capsule Comments

by Your Natural Choice Apple Drugs pharmacist, Chris Letawsky

- The idea of digitalization of the human body is coming. There are blood glucose machines that can connect to an iPhone. Soon, blood pressure and other vital statistics will be added and can be downloaded to your doctor. Eventually, your genetic data will be in a form that will allow your doctor to prescribe the drug that will work best for you.
- Bruising is more common as we get older. Tiny blood vessels, called capillaries in our skin become more fragile and are more likely to rupture. Also the skin contains less fat so there is less protection for the capillaries. Even though we bruise more easily as we age, your doctor should be consulted if you have large painful bruises or bruises that come on suddenly.
- Heartburn results when the valve that shuts off the tube to the stomach doesn't seal well enough and allows the food to come back up the tube (esophagus). Because that food has been mixing with stomach acid, this regurgitation causes the burning feeling in the esophagus. If heartburn becomes chronic, see your doctor.
- If you have to give your child a medication that doesn't taste that good, try giving a cold treat like a Popsicle before and after giving the medicine. The cold will help numb the taste buds and make the bad taste less noticeable.
- Our pharmacists feel that keeping current with all the latest advances in medicine and pharmacy is important. It enables us to serve you better.

Twenty-nine and counting

Elk Point Oilmen's Association is hosting their 29th Annual Oilmen's Golf Tournament this weekend, and are already getting excited about the prospect of their 30th anniversary event next year.

They deserve to be excited, and very proud. Many events of this sort fizzle out after a few years, or screech to a halt when times get tough. The Elk Point Oilmen's Association didn't falter in times when oil prices hit rock bottom, when four inches of rain fell on the 1998 tournament weekend, or when drought turned the course brown and crunchy and golfers had to fight off grasshoppers. They just pulled up their golf socks and carried on.

Congratulations on a long history of successful tournaments that have fostered good times for many golfers.

Way Back When...

Million bushels, 120 golfers, 67 quilts

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND THE ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF AUG. 14 IN...

1987

Local farmer Steve Sribney delivered the one-millionth bushel of the 1987-88 crop year to Elk Point's Alberta Wheat Pool elevator on July 15, well ahead of the July 31 deadline, and was presented with an engraved plaque and a framed replica of his cash ticket in celebration of the milestone, this being the first time a million bushels had been delivered to Elk Point Pool in a single crop year. Elk Point's water meters were going metric, with 290 new meters to be installed and another 280 existing meters to be converted from imperial measure to metric.

1992

Art Britton won the Ninth Annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf grand challenge, where 120 golfers competed in 15 flights. Town council reconvened after a five-week summer break and expressed concern regarding the closure of Imperial Lumber in mid-July, feeling this could have both short- and long-term effects on the community's economy.

1997

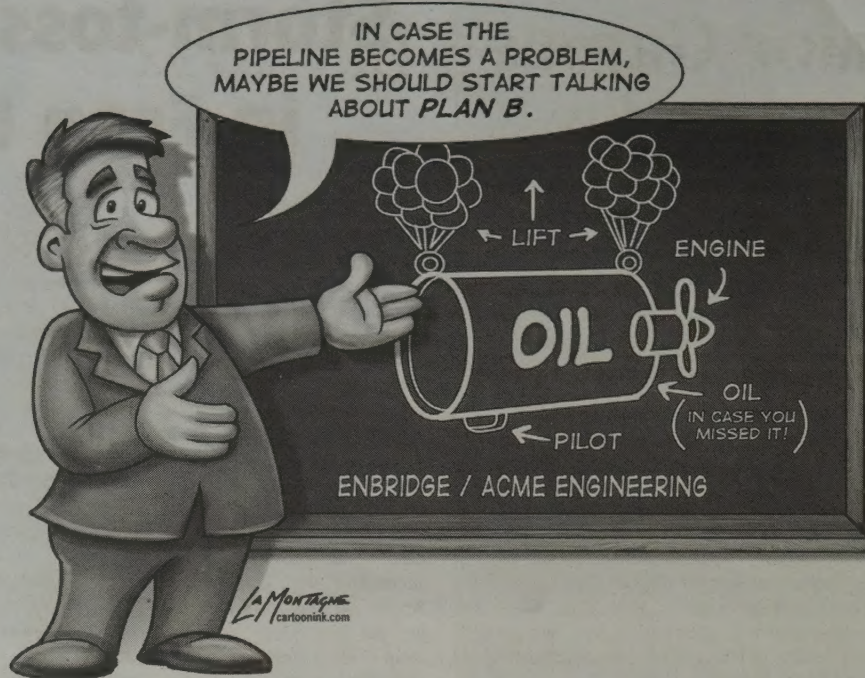

Concerns about road safety were heightened when an oilfield cement truck rolled on the hill leading northeast from Lindbergh just hours before a public meeting to discuss the use of produced oilfield sand in roadbed construction, with the Alberta Energy and Utilities Board stating a belief that its use was not dangerous to the environment. The Elk Point Agricultural Society Bench Fair was moving to a new location, the A. G. Ross Arena, after a number of years in the Elks Hall.

2002

Elk Point Fair was great despite the drought, and was highlighted by an outstanding display of 67 quilts, including a Flying Geese design that was 160 years old, created by Martha Greenfield, great-aunt of Violet McFadyen, and several from the 1920s and 1930s. Billie Milholland was a special guest at the fair, autographing numerous copies of her best-selling North Saskatchewan River Guide.

2007

A craft-loving community showed off its creations at the Horticulture and Craft Show, with the Grand Aggregate award going to Cold Lake's Lillian Balazs, while Donna Bassett and Janice Blacklock winning the people's choice awards for the quilt show. Elk Point Municipal Library was touched by magic as children's entertainer Brian Lehr pulled a rascally rabbit out of his hat and thrilled the summer readers with his other tricks.

GUEST COLUMN

Decision fatigue

Decision fatigue is a condition in which fatigue accumulates in the brain as one makes more decisions. When a person is experiencing decision fatigue, he/she is usually more prone to making "easy" decisions such as purchasing a small pack of candies, after shopping for an hour, without giving it deep thought.

Jonathan Levav at Stanford University designed experiments showing how decision fatigue can leave a person vulnerable to sales and marketing strategies designed to time the sale. "Decision fatigue helps explain why ordinarily sensible people ... can't resist the dealer's offer to rustproof their new car."

Decision fatigue can result not only in fast and careless decisions but even in decision paralysis, where no decision is made at all. Research by Iyengar and Lepper (2000) "found that people who had more choices were often less willing to decide to buy anything at all, and their subsequent satisfaction was lower when they had been confronted with 24 or 30 options than when they faced six options"; which "suggest that choice, to the extent that it requires greater decision-making among options, can become burdensome and ultimately counterproductive."

Decision fatigue can occur when the brain is feeling burnt out. Some researchers believe that actual cause is that the brain's glucose supplies are depleted. Glucose is a simple form of sugar that is the fuel for the brain's electrical activity. When the brain does work by making decisions, weighing different options and exploring ideas, this uses a lot of energy, supplied by glucose. This, of course, is a very simplified definition. Decision fatigue might not affect everyone to the same degree, but it's fair to say it's a pretty common thing for most of us. Now that there's some scientific research actually verifying that it does happen and that there may be definite causes, perhaps we can begin to find effective ways to either mitigate the effects or avoid it entirely. The researchers suggest trying to make the most important decisions earlier in the day or after a meal or snack. They noted that sugary snacks provide a quick glucose boost that quickly improves decision-making ability in most test subjects. While this may not be the answer for people trying to eat healthy or lose weight, it can help us understand how to deal with decision fatigue.

deanna
from the FCSS desk

Another term used in politics for decision fatigue could be "Legislation by Exhaustion". It has been said that the recent passing of Bill C11 (the Federal copy right law) is an example of this taking place. The bill was passed after 15 years of rewriting and rewriting the bill and then after hours and hours of debate, it finally passed late in the evening (around 11 p.m.) by a narrow margin.

So what is being said here? Do we as a people experience problems in making decisions at certain times? If we ask mothers who are experiencing "whinny children", logical, appropriate decisions may be hard to make if this child behavior carries on for any length of time. Like fingernails on a chalkboard, whining is one of those sounds that instantly get your attention ... and jangle your nerves. And yes, if the behavior is not re-directed, called out, or expressed it is not acceptable, it will wear the mother down and because of decision fatigue, the mother will give in to the child without dealing with the presenting behavior of whining.

After reading all this information, how are all our community's parents doing this summer with your children at home? Are you discovering you have made some decisions with them because of decision fatigue? Or what about anyone of you in the work force with your job assignments, have you made some decisions that reflect your decision fatigue?

Ultimately, there may be no easy answer for the problem of making poor decisions. Life is so complicated now that it's hard to avoid the constant deluge of information that flows into our brains. Perhaps trying the best answer is to simplify your life and slow down a bit. Now how does that sound for a simple solution? Well, it is a thought! After all, now we know why we sometimes make poor decisions. It is called "decision fatigue" and there have been studies that have analyzed it.

is a key part of your child's education, and it's important that they not only complete it, but also understand what they've learned.

Studies show that children's achievements in school improve with increased parent involvement in education. So get involved in your kids' schoolwork - you might even learn something new too!

ABC Life Literacy Canada offers 10 tips on how to make homework part of your daily routine:

- Develop a daily routine by setting aside a specific time each day/evening for homework.

- Provide a quiet, well-lit place with basic school supplies.

- Understand your child's style of learning - this will help you develop a personalized homework plan for your child.

- It's not uncommon for kids to get overwhelmed with big assignments or projects. Help them break the project down into smaller steps. Work on pieces throughout the week and do the hard parts on the weekend.

- Talk with your child's teacher and be aware of their method of teaching. Help your child by using familiar terms and examples.

- Don't reserve learning to homework hour. Make learning a part of daily life.

- If your child gets frustrated or distracted with their homework, allow them to take a short break. If this frustration continues, talk with your child's teacher to determine if a tutor might be needed.

- To reinforce comprehension and memory skills, take 10 minutes to talk about the stories you've read together.

- Show your child that the skills they are learning relate to real life. If your child is learning math, for example, balance your cheque book or have them count out change for you.

- Teach your child to be independent. Offer to help them with difficult homework challenges, but then let them complete the remainder on their own.

Welcome to the 29th Annual Elk Point OILMEN'S GOLF TOURNAMENT

August 16 to 18, 2012

President's message

It's that time again, the Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament is about to commence. On behalf of the E.P.O.A., I would like to send out a warm welcome to all.

There are so many people to thank. Let me begin with our community, who, every year, seems to go that extra mile for us to make the atmosphere so enjoyable and comfortable for all. Without the generosity from the many sponsors, donors, volunteers and businesses (old and new), we would not be able to hold such an event every year. THANK YOU SO MUCH!

Let us not forget the Elk Point Golf Course (Ian, Becky and staff). We appreciate the long hours you put into preparing everything for our festivities. Your hard work is and will be noticed in the forthcoming event. Thanks to all.

Now to all participating golfers, your scores have all improved from last year. Your fellowship, companionship and camaraderie will be in top form. And the reminiscing from last year to this year will of course be at its best. To the E.P.O.A. golf committee, I know the job you fellows have done and the effort put into this year's function will again do us proud.

In closing, I wish the best to all golfers and non-golfers. Enjoy celebrating with us, our 29th annual golf tourney. Have fun, but remember, please do not drink and drive for we have shuttle service to accommodate all. We want everybody to get home safely to be able to return next year.

Tim Smereka
President,
E.P.O.A.

Heinsburg Trail Day

Styles of travel varied at Heinsburg's Second Annual Cancer Fundraiser Trail Day on Saturday, from the traditional horseback to a ATV towing a flatbed trailer, above left, to a roomy new wagon (above) constructed by teamster and wheelwright Moe Irvine for the Second Chance Trail Ride earlier this year, with granddaughters Fawn Ockerman walking and Robyn Ockerman coming up beside the wagon on horseback as they arrive back in Heinsburg via the Iron Horse Trail.
